Start your carrier in the energy sector!

Join WONY's 4th mentoring program and we will help you get acquainted with this exciting sector and improve your career opportunities.

Do you think that the energy sector is only for guys? Are you afraid that only men can get a job in this sector? Do you think this sector only offers opportunities if you have a degree in engineering? We are here to bust these myths.

Our Association aims to increase the publicity and visibility of all the exciting, but not so well-known jobs this sector can offer to the young generation of female professionals. Our members have joined forces to support each other and the young generation of female university graduates to support their entrance to the job market and enhance their carrier opportunities in the energy sector.

If you are studying engineering, law, economics, communication, international relations or any related field, if you have completed at least 2 semesters and most importantly you are interested in energy and climate issues you should consider applying to our mentoring programme for the 2022 fall and 2023 spring semester. Our mentors with extensive and diverse experience in the energy sector will help you to:

- learn about your carrier opportunities
- have a taste of what it feels like to work in this sector with your personal mentor,
- take part in networking events and the leading energy and climate conferences
- develop your skills and competencies that are essential on the job market and for your carrier development
- benefit from personal consultation by our members active in various segments of the energy sector.
